Subduction is a geological process that takes place at convergent boundaries of tectonic plates where one plate moves under another and is forced or sinks due to gravity into the mantle. Regions where this process occurs are known as subduction zones. Rates of subduction are typically in centimeters per year, with the average rate of convergence being approximately two to eight centimeters per ...

This timeline of volcanism on Earth is a list of major volcanic eruptions of approximately at least magnitude 6 on the Volcanic Explosivity Index (VEI) or equivalent sulfur dioxide emission around the Quaternary period.. Some eruptions cooled the global climateâ€”inducing a volcanic winterâ€”depending on the amount of sulfur dioxide emitted and the magnitude of the eruption.

A good understanding of Colorado's physical history and rocks requires a feel for large-scale geodynamics. This groundwork article attempts to provide just that context while supporting the photojournals and other groundwork articles that draw on such ideas.. Most importantly, this article seeks to provide a basis for appreciating if not answering the $64,000 geo-question about Colorado:

Major explosions during March-April 2018 cause heavy ashfall on island; significant lahar damages to infrastructure. Ambae (Aoba) is a large basaltic shield volcano in the New Hebrides arc that has generated periodic phreatic and pyroclastic explosions originating in the summit crater lakes Manaro Lakua and Voui during the last 25 years; the central edifice with the active summit craters is ...

Subduction involves the recycling of old, and therefore cold, oceanic lithosphere back into the mantle. A common misconception is that earthquakes represent failure between the subducted lithosphere and the overlying mantle.

1. Introduction. Although many geologic and geochemical changes are reported at the end of the Archean (Taylor and McLennan, 1985, Condie and O'Neill, 2010, Condie, 2015a), the timing, duration, and causes of these changes are not well known. Geodynamic modeling suggests that Earth may have begun as a hot stagnant-lid similar to Io and evolved through an episodic transitional state into plate ...
